A. The Power of Simple Interactions: Appreciating and Strengthening Everyday Human Interactions with Young Children

Dr. Junlei Li, Ph.D., Harvard Graduate School of Education and Dr. Dana Winters, Ph.D., Fred Rogers Center for Early Learning at Saint Vincent College

This is an interactive, video-based, and practice-focused workshop using the “Simple Interactions” approach to closely examine adult-child interactions in a variety of early learning and developmental contexts. We will practice appreciative “noticing” and reflective “wondering” to understand the dynamics within even the simplest human interactions. We will discuss how these interactions weave together four basic building blocks of the human relationship – connection, reciprocity, inclusion, and opportunity to grow – to make positive and cumulative developmental impacts. We will also extend these principles to reflect on the “parallel processes” of adult-adult interactions that support professionals and families.

B. Adverse Childhood Experiences (ACEs)

Naketta Lowery, CEO of Sustainable Life Solutions LLC

Adverse Childhood Experiences (ACEs) are traumatic events that occur in a child's life such as physical or sexual abuse, neglect, household dysfunction or witnessing violence. Research has shown that these types of experiences have a direct impact on children's developing brains and the immune system, increasing the risk for negative health and well-being outcomes as an adult. Adverse childhood experiences are common and cut across demographics such as income level, race, and culture. This presentation will provide participants with an in-depth look at the impact of ACEs on health and well-being, as well as explore factors that increase resiliency. Participants will leave with a deeper understanding of ACEs & what it means to help build & support resilient self-healing communities.

C. What is Meaningful Parent Engagement in Early Learning for Schools Serving Low-income Families?

Dr. Deborah Gross, DNSc, RN, FAAN, Johns Hopkins School of Nursing; Dr. Amie Bettencourt, Ph.D., Johns Hopkins School of Medicine; and Demetria Singleton, MA, Baltimore City Public Schools

Although there is strong consensus that parent engagement in early learning is an important predictor of children's academic success, most school districts do not have a valid or systematic way to assess parent engagement. This interactive workshop will describe a 2-year journey to develop a measure of parent engagement in early learning for Baltimore City Public Schools that would be relevant for students' academic success, meaningful to families with limited resources and (sometimes) negative experiences with schools, and useful for guiding the development of effective parent engagement strategies.

D. Awe and Wonder: Nurturing Sensory Learning for Babies and Toddlers

Monica Wiedel-Lubinski, Director of Eastern Region Association of Forest and Nature Schools (ERAFANS)

Infants and toddlers are ready to explore nature! How can you engage our most tender little ones in meaningful nature connection? How do you ensure safe exploration outdoors? Discover sensory approaches, ideas, and materials that nurture healthy growth and development during this interactive professional development session. Presentation also includes facilitated discussion about program goals, children's needs, and access to outdoor spaces.

E. No Small Matter

Christina Lopez, President, Maryland Association for the Education of Young Children (MDAEYC)

No Small Matter is the first feature documentary to explore the most overlooked, underestimated, and powerful force for good in America today: early childhood education. Through poignant stories and surprising humor, the film lays out the overwhelming evidence for the importance of the first five years and reveals how our failure to act on that evidence has resulted in an everyday crisis for American families, and a slow-motion catastrophe for the country.

Join MDAEYC for an exciting session of entertainment, networking and conversation. Participate in a discussion around the importance of elevating the early childhood profession. Gain information and resources to get involved and make an immediate impact in the lives of young children.
